

Social Work in a Local and Global context, 30 ECTS at Malmo University

Are you interested in developing your knowledge and understanding in relation to comparative Social Welfare and Social Work? This course gives you the opportunity – most welcome to apply!

To be admitted you need: Basic eligibility, 30 credits in Social Sciences.

Description

The course aims to develop the students' knowledge and understanding in relation to social welfare, social problems and living conditions from a multicultural perspective in relation to social work in a local and global context. A focus on examining the diversity of welfare models allow you to compare and contrast models of service delivery within social care and social work. Social vulnerability is discussed in relation to specific themes; children and families; ageing; migration, profession and education and you'll undertake a research-focused texts in relation to relevant research in a local and global context.

Contents

The course consists of three modules:

1. Social Policies and comparative welfare models, 10 credits
2. Preventive Social Work and Interventions, 10 credits
3. Research Methodology, 10 credits

Learning activities

Teaching methods include lectures, seminars, discussions, field studies, individually based written assignments and group exercises.

Further information

Course website: <https://edu.mau.se/en/Course/HS165E>

Jonas Christensen, PhD, Course Instructor
E-mail: jonas.christensen@mau.se

